

Psalms 34:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

I will bless the LORD at all times: his praise shall continually be in my mouth.

Analysis

This acrostic psalm opens with a vow of continual praise rooted in God's deliverance (context: 1 Samuel 21:10-15). The phrase 'at all times' (Hebrew 'be-kol-eth') emphasizes unwavering praise regardless of circumstances, not just in prosperity. 'Continually' (tamid) conveys perpetual, uninterrupted worship. David's commitment to vocal praise ('in my mouth') demonstrates that worship is both an internal disposition and external expression. This verse embodies Paul's later command to 'rejoice always' (1 Thessalonians 5:16) and the pattern of heavenly worship (Revelation 4:8).

Historical Context

The superscription references David's feigned madness before Achish (Abimelech is an alternate name or title). Despite the humiliating circumstances, David committed to praise, demonstrating that worship transcends favorable conditions. This psalm was likely used in Israel's thanksgiving rituals.
