

Psalm 36:8

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

They shall be abundantly satisfied with the fatness of thy house; and thou shalt make them drink of the river of thy pleasures.

Analysis

Abundance satisfaction with 'the fatness of thy house' refers to temple worship where sacrificial portions provided celebratory meals. The 'river of thy pleasures' (Hebrew 'eden,' delight) may allude to Eden's rivers, suggesting that worship restores paradise lost. God doesn't merely provide necessity but lavish delight, abundance beyond need. This counters the wicked's self-centered pursuit of pleasure (v. 4) with God-centered satisfaction that truly fulfills, anticipating Jesus's promise of abundant life (John 10:10).

Historical Context

Temple worship included fellowship offerings where worshipers ate portions of sacrifices, celebrating God's provision in His presence. These sacred meals previewed the eschatological banquet (Isaiah 25:6, Revelation 19:9).
