

Psalms 37:31

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The law of his God is in his heart; none of his steps shall slide.

Analysis

The law of his God is in his heart (תּוֹרַת אֱלֹהָיו בְּלִבּוֹ, torat elohav be-libbo)—This describes internalized obedience, where God's torah (instruction, law) has moved from external command to internal compass. Jeremiah 31:33 prophesies this new covenant reality. None of his steps shall slide (לֹא תִמְעַד אֲשָׁרָיו, lo tim'ad ashurav)—The verb ma'ad means to slip, totter, or waver.

The heart filled with God's law produces stability. David contrasts the wicked who watch (v. 32) with the righteous who walk securely. Paul echoes this in Romans 2:15, describing the law written on hearts. This is the essence of sanctification—not external conformity but internal transformation.

Historical Context

Psalms 37 is a wisdom psalm attributed to David, written in acrostic form following the Hebrew alphabet for teaching purposes. This structure aided memorization. The psalm addresses theodicy—why do the wicked prosper while the righteous suffer?
