Authorized King James Version (KJV)

With gladness and rejoicing shall they be brought: they shall enter into the king's palace.

Analysis

They are brought 'with gladness and rejoicing' and 'shall enter into the king's palace.' The joy is corporate and overflowing; the destination is the king's own dwelling. Entry into the palace represents full acceptance into the king's presence, household, and inheritance.

Historical Context

Entering the king's palace meant gaining access to royal resources, protection, and privilege. For the bride, it meant becoming part of the royal family with all its benefits and responsibilities.
