

Psalm 46:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God, the holy place of the tabernacles of the most High.

Analysis

Contrast to the threatening floods: 'There is a river, the streams whereof shall make glad the city of God.' Jerusalem had no river--this is theological geography describing God's life-giving presence. The 'streams' (peleg) suggest channels of blessing flowing from divine presence, making glad the 'holy place of the tabernacles of the most High.'

Historical Context

Jerusalem's water source, the Gihon spring, was modest compared to rivers like the Nile or Euphrates. This verse creates theological contrast: other cities depend on natural rivers, but God's city is sustained by His presence.

Study Questions

1. What is the 'river' that makes glad God's people today?
2. How does God's presence provide what natural resources cannot?
