

Psalms 49:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever, and their dwelling places to all generations; they call their lands after their own names.

Analysis

The universal reality: 'Their inward thought is, that their houses shall continue for ever...they call their lands after their own names.' The wealthy imagine perpetuating their legacy through real estate and naming. Yet this very effort reveals awareness of mortality--why name land after yourself except to be remembered after death?

Historical Context

Ancient kings built monuments, named cities, and established dynasties to achieve immortality through memory. The psalm exposes this as futile self-deception that ignores actual mortality.
