

Psalms 56:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Be merciful unto me, O God: for man would swallow me up; he fighting daily oppresseth me.

Analysis

The Hebrew 'chanan' (be gracious/merciful) opens this psalm of trust amid persecution. 'Man would swallow me up' uses vivid imagery of enemies as beasts of prey, yet directs the appeal to God's character rather than human allies. The superscription's reference to David among the Philistines shows that even among pagans, God's covenant mercy sustains His elect.

Historical Context

The superscription 'when the Philistines took him in Gath' refers to 1 Samuel 21:10-15, when David feigned madness before King Achish. This was one of David's lowest moments, showing that even faith's champions experience desperation.
