

Psalms 58:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

So that a man shall say, Verily there is a reward for the righteous: verily he is a God that judgeth in the earth.

Analysis

The conclusion vindicates two truths: reward exists for the righteous and God judges the earth. The Hebrew 'peri' (fruit/reward) connects to works proceeding from faith. 'Verily there is a God' responds to practical atheism that denies accountability. This anticipates the final judgment when every hidden thing comes to light (Ecclesiastes 12:14, 2 Corinthians 5:10).

Historical Context

This affirmation counters the psalmist's own earlier question (v.1) and the wicked's assumption that God is inactive or nonexistent. The visible execution of justice serves pedagogical purpose, testifying to God's reality and moral governance.
