

Psalms 64:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Who whet their tongue like a sword, and bend their bows to shoot their arrows, even bitter words:

Analysis

The metaphor of tongues as swords and words as arrows depicts verbal assault as warfare. The Hebrew 'shanan' (sharpen/whet) indicates deliberate preparation, not spontaneous anger. 'Bend their bows' suggests aimed, intentional harm. This anticipates James's teaching on the tongue as a deadly weapon (James 3:5-8), showing that slander requires the same spiritual vigilance as physical warfare.

Historical Context

Ancient warfare involved both swords (close combat) and arrows (distance attacks), making the metaphor comprehensive. Verbal assault in ancient courts could be as deadly as weapons, as false accusations often resulted in execution.
