

Psalms 72:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

He shall come down like rain upon the mown grass: as showers that water the earth.

Analysis

The king's reign compared to 'rain upon mown grass' and 'showers that water the earth' depicts refreshing, life-giving influence. Mown grass needs rain to recover; parched earth needs showers to produce fruit. So righteous leadership revives and blesses the people. This imagery anticipates Christ as the rain of righteousness (Hosea 6:3) whose reign brings spiritual renewal and abundant life (John 10:10). True authority serves and refreshes rather than exploiting and draining.

Historical Context

In Israel's arid climate, rain meant survival and blessing—a gift from God. Using this imagery for the king showed that godly leadership functions as divine blessing, providing what people desperately need.
