

Psalm 73:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Their eyes stand out with fatness: they have more than heart could wish.

Analysis

Their eyes 'stand out with fatness' suggests excessive indulgence producing physical corpulence. 'They have more than heart could wish' means they exceed even their own greedy desires. This describes people whose lives revolve around material accumulation and sensual pleasure. Yet Jesus warns that a person's life doesn't consist in abundance of possessions (Luke 12:15). The rich fool's barns were full but his soul was impoverished (Luke 12:16-21).

Historical Context

In societies where most people lived at subsistence level, the wealthy elite's conspicuous consumption was morally offensive. Amos condemned those living in luxury while ignoring injustice (Amos 6:4-7).
