

Psalms 75:10

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off; but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted.

Analysis

God declares: "All the horns of the wicked also will I cut off; but the horns of the righteous shall be exalted" (Hebrew v-khol-qar-ney r-shaim agaddea qar-not tzaddiq t-romamnah). Violent imagery: God will "cut off" (destroy) the wicked's power ("horns") while "exalting" the righteous. The verse promises complete reversal—prideful power humbled, humble righteousness elevated. This is eschatological justice: final vindication of the righteous, final judgment of the wicked. God's justice is both retributive and restorative.

Historical Context

The horn symbolizes power throughout Scripture (1 Samuel 2:1,10, Zechariah 1:18-21, Luke 1:69). Hannah's prayer celebrates: "The LORD...will exalt the horn of his anointed" (1 Samuel 2:10)—fulfilled in David and ultimately Christ. Mary's Magnificat echoes this: God "has scattered the proud...exalted the lowly" (Luke 1:51-52). Philippians 2:9-11 describes Christ's exaltation after humiliation.

Study Questions

1. How does the promise that God will "cut off" wicked power provide comfort when evil seems triumphant?
2. What does it mean that the "horns of the righteous shall be exalted"—how does humility lead to exaltation?
3. How did Christ's path from cross to crown (Philippians 2:8-11) exemplify this principle of humiliation before exaltation?
