

Psalms 79:12

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And render unto our neighbours sevenfold into their bosom their reproach, wherewith they have reproached thee, O Lord.

Analysis

And render unto our neighbours sevenfold into their bosom their reproach, wherewith they have reproached thee, O Lord. This concluding imprecatory prayer requests comprehensive justice. "Render...sevenfold" (hashev shiv'atayim, הָשֵׁב שִׁבְעָתַיִם) uses intensified language—not merely equivalent punishment but multiplied return. "Sevenfold" represents completeness in Hebrew numerology (Genesis 4:15, Leviticus 26:28, Proverbs 6:31), suggesting thorough, exhaustive justice. "Into their bosom" (el-chuqam, אֶל-חֻקָּם) means directly into their lap or embrace—inescapable, personal reception of deserved consequences.

The crucial phrase "their reproach, wherewith they have reproached thee" (cherpotam asher cherefu-kha, חֶרְפוֹתָם אֲשֶׁר חִרְפוּךָ) clarifies the true offense: the neighbors haven't merely insulted Israel but insulted Yahweh Himself. By mocking Israel's weakness, they mock Israel's God. This transforms the prayer from personal vengeance to theological vindication. The ultimate crime isn't violence against people but blasphemy against God. This echoes 2 Kings 19:22 where Sennacherib's mockery of Jerusalem is defined as reproaching the Holy One of Israel.

The direct address "O Lord" (אֲדֹנָי, Adonai) emphasizes sovereignty—You are Master, and these nations have insulted their rightful sovereign. The prayer concludes by resting the case before divine judgment: act consistently with Your character as covenant Lord who defends Your name and avenges Your people's innocent blood. The imprecatory conclusion asserts faith that God will indeed execute justice, even if delayed.

Historical Context

Sevenfold vengeance appears in Genesis 4:15 (God's protection of Cain) and Leviticus 26:28 (covenant curses for disobedience). The concept reflects ancient Near Eastern justice principles of proportional punishment, intensified for particularly heinous crimes. The nations' reproach of Yahweh through Israel's humiliation invited divine response. Later prophetic literature (Jeremiah 50-51; Isaiah 13, 47) pronounces extensive judgment against Babylon, fulfilling prayers like Psalm 79:12. The principle continues into Revelation 18:6: "Reward [Babylon] even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double."

Study Questions

1. How should Christians today understand imprecatory psalms in light of Jesus's teaching to love enemies?
2. What is the proper relationship between praying for justice and exercising personal forgiveness toward those who wrong us?
3. How does recognizing that crimes against God's people are ultimately crimes against God Himself affect how we pray about persecution?
