

Psalms 86:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name.

Analysis

All nations whom thou hast made shall come and worship before thee, O Lord; and shall glorify thy name. This prophetic vision of universal worship transitions from God's present incomparability (verse 8) to His future recognition by all peoples. The phrase all nations whom thou hast made emphasizes God's sovereignty as Creator over all peoples, not just Israel—His creative act establishes His claim to universal worship.

The verbs shall come and shall worship express confident futurity—David foresees inevitable recognition of Yahweh's supremacy by all peoples. Hishtachavah (הִשְׁתַּחֲוָה, worship) means to bow down or prostrate, indicating complete submission. This universal worship fulfills God's original promise to Abraham that "all nations on earth will be blessed through you" (Genesis 12:3).

The ultimate fulfillment appears in Revelation's vision: "All nations will come and worship before you, for your righteous acts have been revealed" (Revelation 15:4). Christ's Great Commission (Matthew 28:19) initiates this ingathering, as the gospel goes to all peoples. David's prayer anticipates the missionary expansion of the church and the eschatological consummation when every knee bows to Christ (Philippians 2:10-11).

Historical Context

This verse reflects developing Old Testament eschatology anticipating Gentile inclusion in worship of Israel's God. Isaiah, Micah, and Zechariah elaborate this vision of nations streaming to Jerusalem (Isaiah 2:2-4, 56:6-7; Micah 4:1-3; Zechariah 8:20-23). Jesus's ministry to Gentiles and the early church's mission to the nations began fulfilling this prophecy, with ultimate completion awaiting Christ's return when every nation acknowledges God's glory.
