

Psalms 89:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For thou art the glory of their strength: and in thy favour our horn shall be exalted.

Analysis

For thou art the glory of their strength (פִּתְפָּאַת אֹתָם אַתָּה)—God Himself is the tiferet (glory, beauty, splendor) of their oz (strength, might). Any power Israel possesses is merely reflection of God's glory. And in thy favour our horn shall be exalted (וּבְרָצֹן בְּתִרְוֹם קָרְנוֹן)—The qeren (horn) symbolizes power and dignity; through God's ratzon (favor, good pleasure, will) alone is it rum (lifted high).

The horn imagery connects to 1 Samuel 2:10 (Hannah's prayer) and Luke 1:69 ('raised up a horn of salvation... in the house of David'). Christ is the ultimate 'horn of salvation'—all authority given to Him by the Father's favor (Matthew 28:18). Believers have no strength or glory apart from union with Christ; our only boast is in the cross (Galatians 6:14). God's favor (grace) elevates what deserves nothing.

Historical Context

Horns were symbols of strength and royal power (Daniel 7-8 uses horns for kingdoms). For Israel, the horn represented military and political might, but the psalm insists these derive entirely from God's favor, not human prowess. This theology prevented national pride and pointed to the Messiah as the true source of strength.

Study Questions

1. What 'strength' in your life (talents, resources, influence) do you wrongly treat as personal achievement rather than reflection of God's glory?
2. How does understanding that your 'horn is exalted' only by God's favor change your ambitions and goals?
3. In what practical ways can you make God—not your abilities—the glory of your strength?
