

Psalms 89:48

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave? Selah.

Analysis

What man is he that liveth, and shall not see death? (מִי גֶבֶר יַחְיֶה וְלֹא יִרְאֶה-מָוֶת) mi gever yichyeh velo yir'eh-mavet)—rhetorical question expecting the answer "none." Gever (man, mighty man) emphasizes even strong humans cannot escape death. Shall he deliver his soul from the hand of the grave? (יִמְלֹט נַפְשׁוֹ מִיַּד הַקְּבֹרִים yemalet nafsho miyad-she'ol selah)—malat means to escape, slip away. Sheol (the grave, the realm of the dead) is personified as having a hand (yad) that grips the dying. The answer: no one escapes. "Selah" punctuates this grim reality.

The verse expresses universal mortality's despair. Psalm 49:7-9 echoes: "None of them can by any means redeem his brother...that he should still live for ever, and not see corruption." Without resurrection hope, death makes all promises futile. But Christ answers both rhetorical questions:

1. The God-man lived and did not remain dead (Acts 2:24: "Whom God hath raised up, having loosed the pains of death").
2. He delivers souls from Sheol's grip (Hosea 13:14: "O death, I will be thy plagues

O grave, I will be thy destruction"). Christ holds "the keys of hell and of death" (Revelation 1:18).

Historical Context

Ancient Israel's understanding of afterlife was shadowy (though not absent—see 1 Samuel 28; Isaiah 26:19). Exile intensified questions about death: Would God's people perish without seeing promises fulfilled? The answer awaited resurrection revelation. Christ's resurrection proved death isn't ultimate; martyrs could die in faith, knowing they'd rise (Hebrews 11:35: "that they might obtain a better resurrection").

Study Questions

1. How does mortality affect the urgency of God fulfilling His promises in your lifetime?
2. Without resurrection hope, would death make God's covenant promises meaningless? How does 1 Corinthians 15:19 relate?
3. How does Christ holding "the keys of hell and of death" (Revelation 1:18) answer this verse's despair?
