

Psalms 89:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints, and to be had in reverence of all them that are about him.

Analysis

God is greatly to be feared in the assembly of the saints (אֵל נִעְרָץ בְּסוּד־קִדְשִׁים) (Na'aratz (feared, held in awe) describes reverent dread before God's holiness within the sod (council, secret assembly) of qedoshim (holy ones). This may refer to the heavenly court or to Israel's worship assemblies. And to be had in reverence of all them that are about him (וְנִוָּרָא עַל־כָּל־סְבִיבָיו)—Nora (awesome, dreadful) extends to all who surround His throne.

True worship balances intimacy with reverence. While God invites us near through covenant love (hesed), His holiness remains terrifying. Isaiah 6:1-5 captures this—seraphim cover themselves in God's presence, crying 'Holy, holy, holy.' Hebrews 12:28-29 commands we serve God 'with reverence and godly fear: For our God is a consuming fire.' The modern church often loses this balance, emphasizing intimacy without the trembling awe due to infinite majesty.

Historical Context

The 'assembly of the saints' connects to Israel's covenant community gathered for worship at the tabernacle/temple. God's manifest presence (Shekinah glory) made these encounters both inviting and terrifying—the same God who dwelt among His people also consumed Nadab and Abihu (Leviticus 10:1-2) for irreverent approach.
