

Psalms 91:16

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

With long life will I satisfy him, and shew him my salvation.

Analysis

With long life will I satisfy him (אֶרְכֵּךְ יָמִים אֲשַׁבֵּיעֲהוּ, orekh yamim asbi'ehu)—God promises not merely length of days, but satisfaction (sava', to be filled, satiated). The verb suggests complete fulfillment, not empty longevity. This echoes the Deuteronomic covenant blessing (Deut 30:20) where loving God equals 'length of days.'

And shew him my salvation (וְאֶרְאֶהוּ בִישׁוּעָתִי, v'ar'ehu bishu'ati)—The climax of Psalm 91's divine protection. The Hebrew yeshu'ah (salvation) shares the same root as Jesus' name (Yeshua). God doesn't merely grant deliverance—He reveals it, makes it visible. This promise finds ultimate fulfillment in Christ, whom Simeon called God's salvation 'prepared before all people' (Luke 2:30-31). The one who dwells in God's shadow (91:1) ends seeing God's saving work.

Historical Context

Psalm 91 is a wisdom psalm attributed to the Mosaic era by some Jewish traditions, though likely composed during the monarchy. Its promises of divine protection made it a 'soldier's psalm' in Israel's military life. Satan quoted verses 11-12 when tempting Christ (Matt 4:6), showing its messianic significance. Early Christians saw verse 16 as prophetic of Christ's resurrection—satisfied with 'long life' (eternal) and revealing salvation to humanity.

Study Questions

1. How does God's promise to 'satisfy' with long life differ from simply living many years—what spiritual fullness might you be missing even in longevity?
2. In what ways have you personally 'seen' God's salvation beyond mere deliverance from danger?
