

Psalms 92:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Mine eye also shall see my desire on mine enemies, and mine ears shall hear my desire of the wicked that rise up against me.

Analysis

The verb 'seen' (ra'ah) indicates not mere observation but experienced vindication. God grants the righteous to witness His justice against their enemies, not for vengeance but for vindication of truth. The phrase 'mine ears shall hear' emphasizes testimonial evidence of God's judgment. This personal experience of God's justice strengthens faith and confirms that God truly governs moral reality. It refutes the notion that God is indifferent to evil.

Historical Context

The psalmist writes from personal experience of opposition, likely during David's conflicts or during Israel's struggles with surrounding hostile nations.

Study Questions

---

1. How has God allowed you to witness His vindication of truth and justice in your own experience?
2. How can you maintain trust in God's justice even when you don't immediately see the wicked judged?
