

Psalms 94:18

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

When I said, My foot slippeth; thy mercy, O LORD, held me up.

Analysis

When I said, My foot slippeth (אָמַרְתִּי מָטָה רַגְלִי)—The moment of recognizing imminent fall. Matah (slip/totter/give way) captures that instant when balance fails and collapse begins. Thy mercy, O LORD, held me up (חֲסֵדְךָ יְהוָה יִסְעֵדֵנִי)—chesed (steadfast covenant love) becomes saad (support/uphold). The slip happened, but the fall was arrested.

This describes sanctification's rhythm: stumbling met by sustaining grace. Not sinless perfection but preserved progress. Jude 24 promises God 'is able to keep you from falling'—not preventing temptation but providing divine support when we stagger. Peter's sinking walk on water (Matthew 14:30-31) illustrates Jesus catching what chesed arrests.

Historical Context

The imagery likely draws from mountainous Judean terrain where a slipped foot could prove fatal. Shepherds and travelers constantly navigated treacherous paths. David's wilderness years would have familiarized him with such close calls—literal and metaphorical.

Study Questions

1. What recent moment of 'slipping' required God's chesed to prevent your fall?
2. How does knowing God upholds rather than condemns your stumbles change your response to failure?
3. Where do you need to declare 'Thy mercy held me up' as testimony to sustaining grace?
