

Psalms 97:5

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The hills melted like wax at the presence of the LORD, at the presence of the Lord of the whole earth.

Analysis

Mountains, representing the most stable and permanent features of creation, melting like wax before God demonstrates His absolute power over nature. The phrase 'at the presence of the LORD' (mipne Yahweh) indicates that His mere presence, not exerted effort, causes this melting. The designation 'Lord of the whole earth' (adon kol-ha'arets) asserts universal sovereignty. If mountains cannot stand before God, no human power or institution can resist Him. This verse humbles human pride and assures believers that no obstacle is too great for God.

Historical Context

Volcanic activity in the ancient Near East may have provided visual imagery, but the theological point transcends natural phenomena to assert God's unlimited power.
