

Psalms 97:7

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Confounded be all they that serve graven images, that boast themselves of idols: worship him, all ye gods.

Analysis

The shame (bosh) of idol worshipers stems from trusting in powerless objects rather than the living God. 'Graven images' (pesel) are carved representations devoid of life, power, or reality. The command for 'all gods' (elohim) to worship Yahweh may refer to angelic beings (as in Hebrews 1:6, which quotes this verse regarding Christ) or sarcastically to false gods bowing before the true God. This verse's New Testament application to Christ's incarnation demonstrates His deity —He receives the worship due to Yahweh alone.

Historical Context

Israel constantly battled syncretism and idolatry. This psalm confronts all false worship with Yahweh's supremacy, a message Gentile converts to Christianity also needed.
