

Psalm 98:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

The LORD hath made known his salvation: his righteousness hath he openly shewed in the sight of the heathen.

Analysis

The LORD hath made known his salvation (יְשׁוּעָתָה הָזִידָעָה, yeshu'atoh hodia')—God actively reveals (hodia', made known) His yeshu'ah (salvation, deliverance). This is not hidden mystery but public declaration. The Hebrew emphasizes completed divine action: salvation accomplished and proclaimed.

His righteousness hath he openly shewed (צִדְקָתָה גִּילָּה, tzidkato gillah)—God's tzedaqah (righteousness, vindicating justice) is unveiled (gillah, openly revealed) in the sight of the heathen (בְּעֵינֵי הָגּוֹיִם, le'einei hagoyim). This universal witness anticipates the gospel's global reach. Paul quotes this psalm's theme in Romans 1:16-17, connecting God's righteousness revealed in salvation to justification by faith.

The parallelism links salvation and righteousness as twin aspects of God's redemptive work—deliverance accomplished through divine justice satisfied. Christ's cross supremely fulfills this: salvation made known globally through God's righteous atonement.

Historical Context

This enthronement psalm celebrates Yahweh's kingly reign, likely used in temple worship during festivals. The universal scope ('in the sight of the heathen') reflects Israel's prophetic calling as light to the nations (Isaiah 49:6), fulfilled in Christ's commission (Matthew 28:19).

1. How does God's 'making known' His salvation challenge us to proclamation rather than private faith?
2. In what ways is God's righteousness inseparable from His salvation in the gospel?
3. Where do you see God's salvation being 'openly shewed' to the nations today?
