

Revelation 21:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth: for the first heaven and the first earth were passed away; and there was no more sea.

Analysis

And I saw a new heaven and a new earth (καινὸν οὐρανὸν καὶ γῆν καινήν)—John uses kainos (new in quality, fresh) not neos (new in time), indicating not mere replacement but transformation and renewal. This fulfills Isaiah 65:17's prophecy: 'I create new heavens and a new earth.' Peter likewise describes heavens and earth renewed by fire (2 Peter 3:10-13).

For the first heaven and the first earth were passed away (ὁ πρῶτος οὐρανὸς καὶ ἡ πρώτη γῆ ἀπῆλθαν)—The verb apēlthan (departed, passed away) indicates not annihilation but transformation. The creation cursed by sin (Genesis 3:17-19, Romans 8:20-22) gives way to restored glory, the 'regeneration' Jesus promised (Matthew 19:28).

And there was no more sea (καὶ ἡ θάλασσα οὐκ ἔστιν ἔτι)—In Hebrew cosmology, the sea symbolized chaos, danger, and separation (the primordial deep of Genesis 1:2). In Revelation, the sea yields the dead (20:13) and births the beast (13:1). Its absence signifies complete order, safety, and unhindered access to God—no barrier between the nations and the Lamb's throne.

Historical Context

John wrote from exile on Patmos (c. AD 95) during Domitian's persecution. This vision of cosmic renewal would profoundly comfort churches facing the Roman Empire's oppressive might—reminding them that Caesar's 'eternal' Rome would pass away, but God's new creation endures forever. The sea's absence held special meaning for island exile John and landlocked Asian churches who viewed seas as threatening barriers.

Study Questions

1. How does the promise of a renewed creation (not mere escape to heaven) affect your view of physical existence, work, and caring for the present earth?
2. What 'seas' of chaos or separation in your life does Christ promise to ultimately remove in the new creation?
