

Revelation 21:26

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And they shall bring the glory and honour of the nations into it.

Analysis

Nations bringing their glory and honor into the city indicates that redeemed cultural achievements are preserved and sanctified in the new creation. Reformed theology affirms that redemption restores and perfects creation rather than annihilating it. The nations' contributions show that diverse peoples each bring unique gifts to glorify God. This fulfills prophetic visions (Isaiah 60:5, 11) of nations streaming to Zion. The absence of night (v. 25) means continuous worship and activity—no need for rest from labor since work is now perfectly fulfilling.

Historical Context

Ancient cities received tribute from subject nations, demonstrating their dominance. This vision transforms that imagery—nations freely bring their glory to honor God, not under coercion. The inclusion of nations fulfills Abrahamic promises that all peoples would be blessed (Genesis 12:3). First-century Jewish-Gentile tensions made this vision of unified worship profoundly significant.

Study Questions

1. How does the preservation of nations' glory in the new creation affirm that your cultural heritage and achievements, when sanctified, have eternal value?
2. What does the continuous bringing of glory (no night to cease activity) teach about the new creation's dynamic, active nature rather than passive eternal rest?
