

Revelation 21:3

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And I heard a great voice out of heaven saying, Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them, and they shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them, and be their God.

Analysis

Behold, the tabernacle of God is with men, and he will dwell with them (ἡ σκηνὴ τοῦ θεοῦ μετὰ τῶν ἀνθρώπων)—the Greek skēnē (tabernacle) evokes the wilderness Tabernacle where God's glory dwelt (Exodus 40:34-35). This is the ultimate fulfillment of Immanuel—"God with us" (Matthew 1:23). The verb skēnoō (to dwell/tabernacle) recalls John 1:14: "The Word became flesh and dwelt [tabernacled] among us."

They shall be his people, and God himself shall be with them—this is the consummation of the covenant formula repeated throughout Scripture (Leviticus 26:12; Jeremiah 31:33; Ezekiel 37:27; 2 Corinthians 6:16). What began in Eden, was interrupted by sin, promised to Abraham, pictured in the Tabernacle, violated by Israel, and inaugurated through Christ's incarnation now reaches its eternal perfection. The phrase "God himself" (αὐτὸς ὁ θεὸς) emphasizes the unmediated presence—no temple, no veil, no priesthood needed (Revelation 21:22).

This verse is the theological climax of redemptive history: God dwelling directly with His redeemed people in perfect covenant relationship forever. Every previous "dwelling"—Eden, Tabernacle, Temple, Incarnation—was a shadow of this reality.

Historical Context

Written circa AD 95-96 during Domitian's persecution, John's vision provided hope to suffering Asian churches. The imagery of God's tabernacle with humanity would resonate powerfully with Jewish Christians who understood the Temple's destruction (AD 70) as catastrophic loss of God's dwelling place. John announces something greater: the eternal Temple is not a building but God Himself dwelling with His people in the new creation. The covenant formula ("they shall be his people") had been violated repeatedly in Israel's history—exile proved covenant failure. Revelation 21:3 promises the New Covenant's consummation: unbreakable, eternal fellowship with God secured by the Lamb's blood (Revelation 21:27).

Study Questions

1. How does this verse fulfill every "God with us" promise from Genesis through the Gospels, and what does this reveal about God's ultimate purpose in creation and redemption?
2. What makes this dwelling different from Eden, the Tabernacle, and even Christ's incarnation—and how should the promise of unmediated divine presence transform your longing for heaven?
