

Revelation 3:9

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Behold, I will make them of the synagogue of Satan, which say they are Jews, and are not, but do lie; behold, I will make them to come and worship before thy feet, and to know that I have loved thee.

Analysis

The 'synagogue of Satan' refers to Jews who rejected Christ, claiming Abraham's lineage while denying the Messiah. Christ's authority to identify true Israel rests on His fulfillment of covenant promises. This echoes Romans 2:28-29—true Jews are those circumcised in heart, believing in Christ. The promise that persecutors will 'worship before thy feet' and 'know that I have loved thee' anticipates eschatological vindication. Reformed theology affirms that God's covenant promises find fulfillment in the elect, composed of believing Jews and Gentiles in Christ.

Historical Context

Philadelphia faced opposition from the local Jewish community who denied Christians were true Israel. This likely involved synagogue excommunication and reporting Christians to Roman authorities. The promise of reversal—opponents acknowledging Christ's love for the church—would deeply encourage persecuted believers maintaining their claim as God's covenant people.

Study Questions

1. How does Christ's authority to define who belongs to God's people challenge modern religious claims based on lineage or tradition rather than faith?
2. What comfort does the promise of ultimate vindication offer when facing religious opposition or marginalization?
