

Romans 7:4

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God.

Analysis

Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead to the law by the body of Christ—Ethanatōthēte (ἐθανατώθητε, "were put to death") is aorist passive, indicating a completed action done to believers. Through union with Christ's crucified body (dia tou sōmatos tou Christou), believers died to law's jurisdiction. This isn't gradual sanctification but positional identification with Christ's death (Galatians 2:20).

That ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead—The purpose clause (eis to) shows the goal: union with the resurrected Christ. Death to law precedes life in Christ. That we should bring forth fruit unto God—Karpophoreō (καρποφορέω, "bear fruit") contrasts with bearing "fruit unto death" (v. 5). Union with the risen Christ produces life-giving works, impossible under law's condemning ministry.

Historical Context

Paul wrote to believers struggling with the relationship between Jewish law and Christian faith. His argument—that Christ's death dissolved the law's condemning jurisdiction—was revolutionary. This wasn't antinomianism (lawlessness) but explanation of the new covenant's superior ability to produce genuine godliness through Spirit-empowerment rather than external legal compulsion.

Study Questions

1. How does recognizing your death to the law 'by the body of Christ' change how you approach obedience and holiness?
2. What 'fruit' in your life might still be works-righteousness (law-produced) rather than Spirit-produced fruit from union with Christ?
3. In what ways does understanding this sequential pattern (death to law, then marriage to Christ) help you rest in positional rather than performance-based acceptance?
