

Ruth 3:6

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And she went down unto the floor, and did according to all that her mother in law bade her.

Analysis

Ruth's execution: 'And she went down unto the floor, and did according to all that her mother in law bade her'. The narrative confirms Ruth's complete obedience—she followed instructions precisely. This repetition emphasizes her faithfulness and the plan's proper execution. Her actions set in motion events leading to redemption, demonstrating how God works through human obedience to accomplish His purposes. What appeared risky became the mechanism for divine provision and covenant fulfillment.

Historical Context

Threshing floors during harvest were busy places during day but quieter at night, with owners and perhaps some workers sleeping there guarding grain. Ruth's nighttime approach allowed private conversation without public spectacle. Archaeological evidence shows ancient threshing floors were flat, hard-packed circular areas, often near fields. The setting provided appropriate venue for discussing redemption rights without formal legal proceedings but still maintaining propriety through semi-public location.
