

Titus 2:1

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine:

Analysis

But speak thou the things which become sound doctrine—the adversative δέ (de, but) contrasts Titus's ministry with false teachers. λάλει (lalei, speak/keep speaking) is present imperative: continuous action. τὰ πρέπει (ta prepei, things which befit/are appropriate to) indicates harmony between teaching content and life application. ὑγιαίνουσα διδασκαλία (hygiainousē didaskalia, sound/healthy teaching) uses medical metaphor: doctrine produces health or disease.

Chapter 2 shifts from elder qualifications (1:5-9) and false teacher refutation (1:10-16) to congregational instruction: aged men (2:2), aged women (2:3-4a), young women (2:4b-5), young men (2:6-8), servants/slaves (2:9-10). Sound doctrine isn't abstract theology but life-shaping truth producing godliness in every demographic. The chapter climaxes in the theological basis: grace teaches godliness (2:11-14).

Historical Context

Against Gnostic tendencies separating spirit and matter, Paul insists doctrine shapes daily life. Against Judaizing legalism making external conformity primary, Paul roots ethics in grace-transformed hearts. The household codes (Haustafeln) in Colossians 3:18-4:1, Ephesians 5:22-6:9, and 1 Peter 2:18-3:7 share similar structure, adapted to first-century family and economic structures.

Study Questions

1. Does your teaching and preaching connect doctrinal truth to practical living, or do you separate theology from life?
2. How does "sound doctrine" function as spiritual health food versus the junk food of false teaching in your diet?
3. What demographic group in your church most needs targeted, specific application of gospel truth?
