

Zechariah 10:11

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And he shall pass through the sea with affliction, and shall smite the waves in the sea, and all the deeps of the river shall dry up: and the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart away.

Analysis

And he shall pass through the sea with affliction (וְיַעֲבֹר בַּם צְרָה)—new Exodus typology, recalling Israel's Red Sea crossing (Exodus 14). Tsarah (affliction/trouble) acknowledges that return involves hardship, not effortless deliverance. And shall smite the waves in the sea—God strikes the waters as He did at the Red Sea, demonstrating continued sovereign power over chaos/obstacles.

And all the deeps of the river shall dry up (וְהַבִּיא שׁוֹא כָּל-מַצְוֹלֹת אֶרְ) —y'or typically means Nile, connecting to Exodus liberation from Egypt. And the pride of Assyria shall be brought down, and the sceptre of Egypt shall depart—both oppressor nations will lose power. This is political prophecy: empires that enslaved Israel will fall. Historically fulfilled through Persian defeat of both Egypt and Mesopotamian powers; eschatologically points to all anti-God kingdoms falling before Messiah's return.

Historical Context

Persian conquest (539 BC) effectively ended Assyrian (already fallen to Babylon, 612 BC) and Egyptian imperial power, allowing Jewish return. This verse interprets geopolitics theologically: God orchestrates empire-collapse to facilitate His people's restoration. It foreshadows Christ's victory over all spiritual 'principalities and powers' (Colossians 2:15).
