

Zechariah 13:2

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall no more be remembered: and also I will cause the prophets and the unclean spirit to pass out of the land.

Analysis

And it shall come to pass in that day, saith the LORD of hosts, that I will cut off the names of the idols out of the land, and they shall no more be remembered: and also I will cause the prophets and the unclean spirit to pass out of the land. Following the promise of cleansing through the fountain (13:1), God now describes comprehensive spiritual purification. The phrase "in that day" (bayom hahu, בַּיּוֹם הַהוּא) links this to Messiah's coming and kingdom. "I will cut off the names of the idols" (akhrit et-shemot ha-atzabim, אֶכְרִית אֶת-שְׁמוֹת הַעֲצָבִים) promises total eradication of idolatry—not just destroying physical idols but eliminating their very names from memory.

The Hebrew word for idols, atzabim (עֲצָבִים), literally means "pains" or "sorrows," emphasizing idolatry's destructive nature. Post-exilic Israel indeed largely abandoned physical idolatry (unlike pre-exilic generations), though spiritual idolatry remained. "And also I will cause the prophets and the unclean spirit to pass out of the land" connects false prophecy with demonic influence. The term "unclean spirit" (ruach ha-tumah, רַ�ְעַת הַטָּמֵאָה) contrasts with the Holy Spirit (ruach ha-kodesh, רַ�ְעַת הַקָּדֵש)—false prophets operate under satanic deception (1 Kings 22:22-23, 1 John 4:1-6).

This dual cleansing—removal of idols and false prophets—addresses both objects of false worship and purveyors of false teaching. The New Testament shows partial fulfillment as the gospel spreads, with ultimate fulfillment in the new creation where nothing unclean enters (Revelation 21:27, 22:15). Christ's ministry included casting out demons and warning against false prophets (Matthew 7:15, 24:11, 24).

Historical Context

Post-exilic Israel never returned to the blatant idolatry that characterized pre-exilic Judah. The trauma of Babylonian exile effectively cured them of worshiping physical idols like Baal and Asherah. However, false prophecy remained a threat—those who claimed divine authority but spoke deception. Verses 3-6 describe the shame and exposure awaiting false prophets. Historically, this prophecy looked toward the Messianic age when truth would triumph over falsehood. Jesus fulfilled this by exposing false teachers (Matthew 23) and commissioning apostles to preach truth (Matthew 28:19-20). The early church struggled with false prophets (2 Peter 2:1, 1 John 4:1), but God's word prevailed. Eschatologically, when Christ returns, all deception will end—Satan bound (Revelation 20:2-3), false prophet destroyed (Revelation 19:20), and only truth remaining in God's eternal kingdom.

Study Questions

1. What 'idols' (anything taking God's place in affection or trust) need to be 'cut off' from your life so their names aren't even remembered?
2. How can you discern between true prophetic teaching (proclaiming God's word faithfully) and false prophecy influenced by 'unclean spirits'?
3. What does the connection between idolatry and false prophecy teach about the relationship between right worship and right doctrine?
