

Zechariah 4:14

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

Then said he, These are the two anointed ones, that stand by the Lord of the whole earth.

Analysis

Then said he, These are the two anointed ones, that stand by the Lord of the whole earth—The angel's answer identifies the olive trees as shənē bənē-hayyitshar (שְׁנֵי בְנֵי־הַיִּצְהָר, 'two sons of fresh/new oil'), literally 'sons of the oil/anointing'—those who continuously receive and dispense anointing. The term points to Joshua the high priest and Zerubbabel the governor, both anointed for their respective offices (priests were anointed, Exodus 29:7; Davidic kings were anointed, 1 Samuel 16:13). Together they represent the dual messianic offices—priest and king—united perfectly in Christ.

That stand by the Lord of the whole earth—Hā'ōmēdīm 'al-'ādōn kol-hā'āretz (הַעֹמְדִים עַל־אֲדֹן כָּל־הָאָרֶץ) depicts them standing in service before 'the Lord of the whole earth'—not just Israel's God but sovereign over all nations. The 'standing' ('ōmēdīm) posture indicates readiness for service, like ministers awaiting commands (compare the angels standing before God, 3:7). This previews Messiah who 'stands at God's right hand' (Psalm 110:1; Acts 7:55-56) having accomplished redemption, now exercising priestly intercession (Hebrews 7:25) and royal rule. Revelation 11:4 applies this imagery to the 'two witnesses' martyred then resurrected, testifying during tribulation. The principle: God empowers anointed servants who stand before Him to supply life-giving oil to His lampstand people.

Historical Context

In 520 BC, Joshua and Zerubbabel jointly led the restoration—Joshua rebuilding worship, Zerubbabel rebuilding infrastructure. Neither alone could accomplish God's purposes; both together, anointed and empowered by the Spirit, supplied what Israel needed. This dual leadership foreshadowed Christ who unites both offices—our great High Priest and King of Kings—and who anoints us as 'a royal priesthood' (1 Peter 2:9).
