

Zechariah 9:17

Authorized King James Version (KJV)

For how great is his goodness, and how great is his beauty! corn shall make the young men cheerful, and new wine the maids.

Analysis

For how great is his goodness, and how great is his beauty! (כִּי-מְהִתְּבוּ וְמְהִי)–dual exclamation emphasizes God's tuv (goodness, moral excellence) and yofi (beauty, aesthetic perfection). Biblical Hebrew rarely uses such extravagant praise, making this verse's double superlative noteworthy. God isn't merely functional (providing salvation); He is supremely desirable in Himself.

Corn shall make the young men cheerful, and new wine the maids– agricultural abundance symbolizes covenant blessing (Deuteronomy 7:13). Dagan (grain) and tirosh (new wine) represent comprehensive provision. The result is joy: young men and women flourishing under God's blessing. This points forward to messianic banquet imagery (Isaiah 25:6, Matthew 26:29) where material and spiritual blessings merge. True prosperity flows from knowing God's goodness and beauty.

Historical Context

Post-exilic Judah struggled economically during initial decades of return. Zechariah promises that faithful temple-rebuilding and covenant-keeping will result in restored agricultural blessing. This counters Haggai's contemporary warnings about failed harvests due to neglecting God's house (Haggai 1:6-11).
